BRAND PERSONALITY

The Sustainability Supporter

With CEO and Founder Conner Mesic as the centre, the brand positions itself as a hub for buying, selling, and trading unique vintage streetwear that not only establishes a community but preserves the lifespan of clothing. Having evolved from operating solely through Instagram to a traditional brick and mortar storefront in St. Catharines, Ont. accentuates the public's desire for a lifestyle that reflects affordability, sustainability and fellowship.

The Friendly Stylist

As displayed through their website and social media presence, the brand positions itself as a friend that provides quality fashion advice and provides them with unique pieces that fit their aesthetic. The brand emphasizes their consistent restocks and substantial inventory to entice the public to pop in and seek assistance putting together a new outfit that will elevate their closet.

BRAND VOICE

Trendy: The brand uses trending sounds and language on its socials that resonates with its target audience (Gen Z) to captivate their attention and subconsciously instil that they do not only keep up with social media trends but also offer the latest, unique pieces.

Inviting: The brand also uses vocabulary and jargon like "fresh," "deals," "giveaway," and "restock," that makes customers excited and aware that VS.Resell does not only welcome new clothes and customers into the store but also encourages new interactions and friendships to be made with the engaging staff.

Unserious: At the same time, the brand produces content that is unserious and lighthearted to highlight the type of environment that exists at the store. VS.Resell is a place where it is easy to shop and where customers will feel empowered to seek assistance styling their next outfit.
